

MRS. JAY C. WELSH.

Mrs. JAY C. WELSH is a well-known young matron much esteemed in social circles. She was formerly Miss Julia Stanley, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Stanley, a very wealthy couple, who, heedless of the march of fashion in residential quarters, still retain their gracious old house in West Twenty-second street. Mrs. Welsh has many social qualifications that endear her to a large circle of friends.

MISS CANDALARIA APARICIO is a belle of the Spanish type. She is the sister of Mue, de Barrow. The family augmented its fortune immensely when the marriage of one of its members to the multi-millionaire President of Guatemala took place. It is the custom of Mue, de Barrow, with whom Miss Candalaria Aparicio lives to spend the greater part of the year in Europe, and during her absence her large Fifth avenue establishment is rented. This year Mr. Perry Belmont has a lease of the house.

A MENTALLY alert and vivacious young society woman who can boast of a great fortune in her own name is Miss Ella Acker. She invariably wins notice and praise at affairs of social importance by the exquisite taste and skill she displays in the matter of dress. Her toilets are always designed by herself, and not a few of her gowns have been copied by her less original friends.

MISS ANDERSON, whose home is at No. 112 West Fifty-eighth street, is generally conceded to be one of the exceptionally pretty girls frequently seen at important social functions. She is a pronounced blonde, with that rare combination of facial coloring commonly called peaches and cream complexion. Her features are clear cut and regular, her hair is of a light shade, soft and wavy. Her eyes are blue. She carries herself with stately grace, and is altogether a strikingly beautiful girl.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT HOK leave town next week for Lake Waccabuc, N. Y., where they own a handsome country place of many acres. Early in July the family will go into camp at St. Regis Lake, in the Adirondacks. Camp is something of a misnomer for this luxurious habitation in the woods, for, although built somewhat after the plan of a camp, with several detached buildings, every room is fitted with the greatest comfort, and life is conducted on almost the same grade of sumptuousness as at Newport.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN SHERMAN HOYT (the latter formerly Miss Ethel Stokes), who have leased "Lorington," the Clarence Andrews seat, at Lenox, will take possession of their new home early in the Summer.

MRS. RUNYON, widow of the late United States ambassador to Germany, has taken a cottage in East Orange, New Jersey.

MISS ELLA ACKER.

MISS CANDALARIA APARICIO.

MISS ANDERSON.
